

ABSTRACT

A method for fabricating a field effect transistor (FET) in and on a semiconductor substrate with local interconnects to permit the formation of minimal space between gate and the local interconnects by fabricating the source and drain of the FET and the local interconnects prior to forming the gate of the FET.